Lecture Series: The Greatest Detective Story Ever - 2:00pm
VISTA LOUNGE, 2 & 3

Ancient people thought the Earth was flat and under a dome that contained the sun, stars, planets and moon. They thought fossils were natural shapes in the rock that had no link to living creatures or in some cases were the remains of giants or dragons. They had no idea how the Earth formed or how old it was. How did we get from that level of near-zero understanding to our present knowledge of the Earth? The story is a fascinating series of theories, discoveries and milestones that are described in the presentation.
